題（一）：

During the nineteenth century, the mechanization of farming and the fencing of range land opened the agricultural heart of North America to intensive development. As the natural geographic center of this region, Chicago became the crossroads of a vast transportation network. The great waterway systems of the Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes were linked in Chicago in 1847, when the Illinois-Michigan Canal was opened to traffic. Within the next year, rail lines began operate trains to and from the city. The rise of agricultural activity demanded facilities for the storage and milling of grain, the slaughtering of cattle, and the processing and shipment of meat. The manufacture of farm machinery branched out into the basic metal-fabricating and woodworking industries. This soon attracted bank and other financial institutions. Four years after the end of the Civil War, Chicago was already established as the focal point of the largest system of inland waterways in the world and the hub of a rail network that extended to the Atlantic, Gulf, and Pacific coasts. The productive potential of the city was unparalleled, and the pace of its industrial expansion reached explosive proportions.

1. What is the main topic of the passage ?

3. Why did Chicago initially begin to grow ?
 (A) It was located in the middle of a productive area
 (B) Its industries attracted jobless people
 (C) It could provide food for a large local population
 (D) Its wealthy inhabitants invested their money there
4. According to the passage, bankers were primarily attracted to Chicago because of _____.
 (A) the outbreak of the Civil War in the East
 (B) the increase in manufacturing activity

- (C) good opportunities for travel
 (D) schools that trained qualified economists
5. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the text as a major factor in Chicago's growth ?
 (A) New railroad lines
 (B) Innovative farm equipment
 (C) Increased water transportation networks
 (D) Rising demand for the manufacture of explosives

題 (二) :

Lie detectors do not detect lies. They record a person's physiological reactions to certain questions. Basically, the instrument records four physiological activities on a moving roll of graph paper. Two pens are driven by air-filled tubes placed around a subject's chest and stomach to record breathing movements. Another pen, connected to blood pressure cuff on the subject's arm, records each heartbeat and traces changes in blood pressure. The fourth pen is connected to a pair of metal electrodes attached to the fingers of one hand. This pen records changes in the electrical resistance of the skin and can indicate subtle sweating. In administering the test, examiners usually ask neutral questions such as birth dates and addresses in order to compare these responses with those from emotionally charged questions.

6. In the last sentence, the word "those" refers to _____.
 (A) responses (B) questions
 (C) birth dates and addresses (D) changes
7. An emotionally charged questions might be about _____.
 (A) a birth day (B) one's work place
 (C) a crime (D) the weather
8. Physiological reactions include all of the following EXCEPT _____.
 (A) breathing movements (B) heartbeats
 (C) blood-pressure changes (D) posture difference
9. It can be inferred from the passages that _____.
 (A) Lies are detected by the test
 (B) one must be able to analyze reactions to a lie detector test
 (C) neutral questions need not be asked
 (D) all physiological reactions indicate lying
10. Which of the following is NOT needed to conduct a lie detector test ?
 (A) examiners (B) four pens
 (C) a roll of graph paper (D) neutral respondents
